DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
 - I. Claims 1-65, drawn to a method of diagnosing tumorigenicity, determining antineoplastic effects of anitestrogen therapy, and determining resistance to antineoplastic effects, classified in class 435, subclass 4.
 - II. Claim 66-81, drawn to a kit for determining tumorigenicity in breast tissue, classified in class 435, subclass 4.
 - III. Claim 82-85, drawn to a method of treating or preventing the re-occurrence of cancer, classified in class 424, subclass 145.1.

A. In the event applicant elects Group I, claims 1-65 or Group II, claims 66-81, applicant is required to elect a single species of GP88 detection, comprising:

Species A, immunological assay

Species B, cDNA probe

Species A-B are patentably distinct based on structural and functional differences and mode of action.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

2. Inventions II (product) and I and III (method) are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case the methods of Groups I and III may be practiced using a number of different products that are very much unrelated. For example, the method of Group I may not only be practiced using the product (kit) of Group II, but may also be practiced by determining the expression of BRAC1.

Art Unit: 1642

3. The methods of Groups I and III relate to methods but each method differs in method steps, modes of operation, reagents needed and serve different endpoints and effects. For example, a method of diagnosing tumorigenicity is different from a method of treating or preventing the re-occurrence of cancer, as a method of diagnosing requires measurement of GP88 and a method of treatment comprises administration of tamoxifen.

4. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, divergent subject matter, and require different search strategies, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

5. Applicant is advised that the response to this requirement, to be complete, must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed.
